

CU InfoSecurity Conference

Speaking Engagements

Vendor Case Studies

CU Organizations

Newsletters

DP Vendors

Consulting

Webinars

Get Our Free Email Newsletter

first name

last name

position

your@email.here

Subscribe

Credit Union tech-talk News

November 20 - November 24, 2006

Biometric Digest Highlights - WWW.BIODIGEST.COM

Sargent and Greenleaf, a subsidiary of Stanley Security Solutions Inc., is now offering a biometric safe deposit system. The TouchVault system is a fully automated safe deposit banking solution that employs biometric fingerprint technology to authenticate members and control day-gate access.

Cogneto, the developer of a two-way, multi-factor authentication platform called UNOMI, is partnering with Cognitec Systems, a leading developer of facial recognition software, to integrate facial biometrics into UNOMI. By integrating this physical biometric into UNOMI, Cogneto says that they are the first company to bring facial recognition to the online banking market. Using their own webcams, users can receive a higher level of identity assurance for their online bank accounts. Cognitec's software matches images of users with photos taken by UNOMI during the normal log-in process. This application will be integrated into UNOMI's consensus model, which uses information from multiple factors to determine a user's security and risk rating.