

Stanley Security Sets Up National Service Center for Integration Customers

Jan 23, 2006

INDIANAPOLIS -- Stanley Security Solutions Inc. has opened a support services center designed to create a one-stop shop for Stanley Systems Integration (SSI) customers for information on maintaining and enhancing their access control and security systems. Open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, Stanley says the National Service Center (NSC) will serve as the backbone of its integration business.

"This is the next step in the path to become the security industry's leader in providing a consistent customer experience that exceeds client expectations," said SSI National Service Director Rob Van. "The National Service Center enables us to leverage best practices across our portfolio and ensure that service requests are performed in a timely and professional manner."

A part of the NSC's function will be to allow customers to consolidate administrative tasks, billing and service requests. The NSC, staffed by 40 full-time, will also manage and control security functions, taking the place of hired security professionals.
