Stanley's VIP X enterprise level DVR

Stanley Security Products, a business division of the Stanley Security Solutions Group, has announced an upgrade of the VIP video management system. VIP X is a scalable, enterprise level digital video recorder that is designed to be more cost-effective and flexible while increasing performance. The unit is designed to integrate with existing CCTV installations, as well as third-party transaction systems, such as automated teller machines, alarm panels and access control systems. It also features multiple server consolidation, IP distributed architecture, remote administration, multiple display support, support for megapixel cameras, and a choice of video compression: JPEG or MPEG-4.
